Chamberlain Answers Criticism Of British Campaign In Norway

Wide Powers Placed On Shoulders Of Admiralty Chief—Prime Minister Appeals For United Nation

By J. F. SANDESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, May 7.—Wide powers of supervising the day-to-day military operations have been placed on the shoulders of Winston Churchill, who becomes in effect Britain's First Lord of War.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made the announcement to the House of Commons today when answering criticism of the government's direction of the Norwegian campaign. He gave a long recital of the difficulties of the northern front and appealed to the nation to stand united in this hour of trial.

Norse Campaign Not Yet Finished

Mr. Chamberlain declared that "the campaign is not yet finished" in Norway, but warned the nation to remember: "There are other fronts which may at any moment blaze into a conflagration."

"This is not the time for quarrels among us," said the 71-year-old prime minister, "but for the closing of ranks and setting of teeth for the long, hard road ahead."

The prime minister faced a noisy opposition. At one time the Speaker of the House had to ask for silence.

With frankness, Mr. Chamberlain admitted that the last Norwegian campaign was a failure and the Allies had lost prestige. But it was nothing comparable to the reverse at Gallipoli in 1915, he said, and in view of German air superiority and availability of reinforcements and supplies, the only sensible thing to do was to withdraw the British force, which was not much more than a division.

Urgent Appeal Made By Norway

The primary reason troops were sent to southern Norway was that an urgent appeal was made by the Norwegian commander-in-chief for an attempt at an Trondheim. When it was found to be impossible to capture the ancient Norwegian city, the troops were withdrawn.

"Is there anyone here who could have done otherwise?" he asked, searching the faces of members in all parts of the house.

Clement Attlee, delivering the first blow for the opposition in the lively debate, said he was not satisfied that the present war cabinet was an efficient and effective body for carrying on the war. However, the prime minister said a small war cabinet be formed, composed of men without departmental responsibilities.

"Young boys without training were sent to Norway," charged Mr. Attlee, who is parliamentary leader of the Labour party. He contended that older men should have been sent to the northern expeditionary force.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech was not the fighting one he had been expected to make in the face of a reversal in the war.

He spoke hesitatingly at first, but then he spoke with confidence and authority.

At all times the Allies must be prepared to resist a German attack at any one of the fronts, he said, and could not afford to disperse their forces to the advantage of Germany.

He pleaded the government to do its utmost to promote the war effort, particularly the production of war materials so that "we can deliver our blows where we choose."

The prime minister said that Mr. Churchill, while retaining his post as first lord of the admiralty, will give guidance and direction to the efforts of staff of the three fighting services.

He said that Britain may now be attacked "in the most violent way."

"In this debate we are giving hostages to fortune," he said. Military advisers had cautioned him against today's discussion, "but we could not let this in a democratic country."

While the discussion should be held, he said, the government should be put to a test.

Named Warlord
Appointment of H. Holt, deputy warden of the Fort Saskatchewan jail, to be warden of the Leithen jail, was announced today by Mr. W. A. Fallick, minister of public works.

MUSIC FESTIVAL HONORS WON BY DIDSBURY PUPILS

Despite adverse weather, the annual Musical Festival of the Old School Inspectorate was successfully held last week with 90 schools in the division, and 10 towns, Didsbury, Carstairs and Old, taking part. Throughout the day, contests were held in the school building, two churches and the opera house, with the grand concert of the winners held in the evening in the opera house and old church. This latter feature was held to avoid turning away a great number of people, as happened last year.

Didsbury won the shield given to the town with the most points, for the second time in succession, with a total of 248. Hayston school won the shield for rural schools, with 10 points. Old was second of the towns with Carstairs, third. Rural school competition for the shield was very keen. The high quality of the competition was praised by the adjudicators, who were: Dramatization, Miss Helen Mitchell and Miss Olive Fisher, of Calgary; music, Norman Macdonald, Miss Cornelia Higgins, and L. D. Wright of Old.

Dr. H. C. Liewer, Didsbury, is the president of the festival. The festival is a success.

PIONEER PASSES: DROVE OX CART IN EARLY DAYS

Death beckoned a pioneer of over 90 years' standing, except Whitford died suddenly last Saturday. Mr. Whitford, 91, collapsed from heart failure while eating as he walked to his home.

Mr. Whitford was born in Portage La Prairie and came to this district in 1884 after driving a horse-drawn ox cart from Winnipeg to St. Albert for several years. He immediately became known as a pioneer. He was where he moved to Whitford several years later. Shortly afterwards he moved another five miles west to establish the first post office store here. He also was mail carrier for several years.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Fred Mitchell of Whitford, Mrs. Gordon Mitchell of Whitford, Mrs. Lloyd Mitchell of Whitford, Mrs. W. H. Mitchell of Lake St. John, and Mrs. Ole Plett of Warlock, and one son, Jim at home. His wife, Edna, died in 1912. His wife predeceased him in 1912.

Interment will be in the local cemetery.

Pleasant Vale school was built on Prairie Creek largely through Mr. Jackson's efforts, and he was secretary and treasurer until his death. Last year he had been for years in this district.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—My husband and I are young couple with one child. We have been very happy until a few months ago, when he began to get grouchy and ill-tempered and sniffling when at home and to go out every night and to run around with a girl. When I tried to get at the cause of the change in him and what was the matter with all that he would say, "I don't know." I asked if he thought I had cared for the girl he was with and he said, "Yes, I think I do." I am not a woman who will stay with a man who doesn't want her, so I secured a job and have been supporting myself ever since. Now he has decided that I am the only person he ever loved and he wants me to forgive and forget and come back to him. I still love him. What should I do?

—Mrs. J. W.

Answer: You will certainly prove that you have an optimistic disposition if you go back to a husband when he can make up his mind whether he wants to be a husband or a bachelor. What a woman wants in marriage is security, and a husband who recognizes his responsibilities and lives up to them.

There are many men who should never marry because they are called by nature. They cannot stand being bound.

The tragedy of the situation is that these men have a peculiar fascination for women who love them, marry them, forgive them when they wander away, take them back when they return and repeat the same dreary performance as long as they live. Evidently your husband belongs to this part-time husband class.

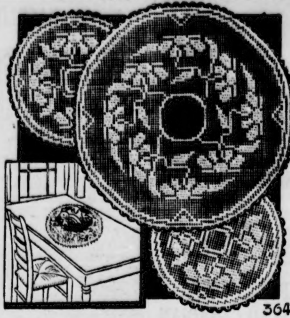

He didn't want to come back to the same home every night, no matter how comfortable his wife made it. He didn't want to relapse the same woman every day, not even if she was easy on the eyes.

Then, when he missed home comforts and a woman who grew tired of being free and home and loved, and so he wanted to come back and rebuild the home.

Don't delude yourself into thinking that if you remarry your husband will change and be a steady, contented, faithful companion. He won't. You will never be sure of him. Don't go back to him, unless you have the patience of Job, the meekness of Gentile, and the abnegation of a potter's plumb, or unless you love him as much as you would rather have him as a weekend guest, so to speak, than any other man for a steady companion.

Inez Ruth Speelman And Pte. Kropnik Merry In Trochu

TROCHU—One of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Speelman of Trochu was the scene of a quiet wedding recently, when their elder daughter, Miss Inez Ruth Speelman, became the bride of Private John Arthur Kropnik, I.R.C., of Calgary, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kropnik of Trochu. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Brown of the Trochu United church.

The bride, who wore a navy blue triple-strap gown, with matching accessories and a carriage of sweet heart train was attended by Miss Vera Stone.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kropnik left for Calgary where they will make their home for the present.

He has a heart, a diamond, a fine spade fit and a good club suit, but from his standpoint, the hand does not look like a slam.

Quebec Women Have New Responsibility Says Premier Godbout

MONTREAL, May 7. — Recent granting of the vote in provincial elections to Quebec women is not so much a privilege "but rather an increase of their responsibilities," Premier Adolphe Godbout told the League for Women's Rights Saturday night in an address, speaking at a testimonial dinner offered for him and Mrs. Godbout, the premier and Quebec women "must now be prepared to co-operate increasingly and wholeheartedly with all public bodies interested in matters of family, education, health and social work."

SHYNESS IS NOT A SIGN OF WEAKNESS

Those who think that shyness is a sign of weakness have only to look at a list of some of the strongest characters in history. In America there have been many shy men who were strong characters. Thomas Jefferson was unable to mix socially with any degree of success and always held people at a distance. George Washington is described by his biographers as "shy, silent, slow, and cautious." John Quincy Adams was also timid and cautious. Grant was ill at ease with people. Coolidge was notoriously timid, and Herbert Hoover was often called a "shy" man while in office. Henry Ford and J. P. Morgan have made their dynasties famous. It may be a handicap, but it is not necessarily a weakness.

49 The version of the Bible was available translated into 56 Giant King.

But he knows that his opponents probably have a save in either hearts or diamonds, therefore this time North must jump to four spades, not inviting a slam but simply telling his partner that he is in the limit of his bidding.

Now you can see East's predicament. He cannot risk an overall of five diamonds and North and South bid the contract for four spades, not inviting a slam but simply telling his partner that he is in the limit of his bidding.

East and West can make four hearts, therefore even if they bid five hearts and were doubled, they would get a very good score on the hand.

Five hearts doubled and down one may well minus 200, while the other way they are minus 450.

... BANKING FOR THE BUSINESS WORLD ...

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

Great projects, lesser undertakings, humble business beginnings—all have shared in the banking co-operation afforded ever since 1817 by the Bank of Montreal.

And in this swift-moving day we are abreast of business, as it speeds into tomorrow on all-metal airplanes, streamlined trains, swift ocean ships and amazing highway motors.

Unchanged in its basic character of co-worker with Canadian business and safe dependable banking ally, the Bank has merely altered the speed of its service to keep pace with changing business.

We did our banking part in the canal-boat and stage-coach era; and we are doing our part in the present-century business and industrial development of the Dominion, and we are prepared to meet the increased service demands to be expected in tomorrow's world of business. We are always pioneering.

Business executives are cordially invited to talk about their banking needs with the manager of any of our 500 branches.

...the smiling but kept her head down, on the starting line. "He was nice enough to offer to ride Pepper Boy for me—but I had other things to do."

A roar went up from watching thousands as the field leaped forward in a perfect start.

"Say!" Paul Wharton exclaimed, "Pepper Boy, breaking from the extreme outside, was shooting ahead—Madden was trying to cut long diagonal line across the field—trying to get to the rail at the end of the turn."

"But look there!" Wharton shouted again. "That Sheep was bad, it was! Watch him!" Sheep started was hustling his boy, Monitor, to the rail—he had kicked the fast-moving brown, Cantaneta, who had been in the lead.

Now, as they reached the first turn, the field was split into two groups. Sheep Grant with Monitor in the lead, and Pepper Boy, seven horses were grouped behind him.

"Too bad Madden couldn't get the win. He's dropping back." So he said.

"The horse is in stride—Madden's giving him a breather," Sheep said.

"Maybe," Wharton muttered.

But I don't like the way Grant is kicking that nag of his to the front.

"Boy—let's length ahead as they start down the back stretch."

"He's turning his colt up!" said Sheep.

"Sherry—and he hoped it was true."

"Maybe," Wharton muttered again. "I'm not sure about Grant. You know it; but just the same he's a darn good judge of pace."

"Boy four thirds-around right," Sherry said, as he noted that Pepper Boy had found a new lead.

"How long about Cantaneta—surged forward on the outside—evgen with Pepper Boy?"

The three colts—on close together that a handkerchief could have almost covered them—went down to the wire together. Now they were head and head, nose and nose.

They flashed under the wire.

The boy was starting his run with Pepper Boy. He lifted his arms at the three-eighths pole, as they went into the far turn.
Sherry knew he was clucking to Pepper Boy—she saw her game little colt coping forward—Madden was shooting into a space between Castaneta and the rail! Pepper Boy got the rail—a was alongside Castaneta—was dawdling away from Castaneta—as shooting at a space between Monitor and the rail ahead.
“Not this time!” Wharton shouted. “Madden almost got it! Opening—but Shen has an eye in the track of his head. See, he’s drawn close to the rail himself.”
So he had. But Madden was taking Pepper Boy out—near the stretch; Monitor in front by half-length—Pepper Boy second—and the brown, Castaneta, coming last on Pepper Boy’s flank. And then she thundered seven or eight times vainly trying to catch up with the leader.
There been a last minute plunge on Monitor by the way? No—she’d kept her place right along with him?
“Oosh, but Grant can ride!” Now he’s coming in the last furling! Sherry yelled. Madden had lashed with his halberd! Pepper leaped forward. His nose was now at Monitor’s neck! But Castaneta surged forward on the outside—even with Pepper Boy.
The three girls—again together—that handkerchief could have almost covered them—swapt down to the wire together. Now they were head and head, nose and nose.

ADJUDICATION IN EDMONTON FOR FESTIVAL

Arthur Benjamin Praies
Standard Of Music In Coast City

Standard of musical playing at Vancouver, as well as talent standards in the musical world, just completed their first year, are very high, according to Arthur Benjamin, noted British composer-conductor-pianist-tutor. He arrived from the coast city Monday night, in register at the hotel and Tuesday morning commenced his duties as adjudicator of the vocal and instrumental classes in the four-day Vancouver District Musical Festival.

Mr. Benjamin, professor of piano at the Royal College of Music, has been here on previous occasions as an adjudicator. He is now making his home in Vancouver where he has a wife and two children. He has been in the city for six months now and he can assure you that I have not met a musician here in a must musical city and I hope I am contributing something to the development of the city.

Mr. Benjamin spoke enthusiastically of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra of 50 players, which has already conducted in two regular seasons. He also mentioned the four promenade concerts, which he hoped and expected to be turned into a year-round feature.

HIGH STANDARD

The standard of piano playing in particular was very high, he said. Vancouver festival, he said, "General level of playing in the British Columbia festival is the best I have heard in festivals." He said that he had been in Vancouver since his arrival there. He has been in the city for six months now and he can assure you that I have not met a musician here in a must musical city and I hope I am contributing something to the development of the city.

A highlight of Vancouver's musical life will come in the middle of this month when John Barbiroll, permanent conductor of the premiere New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Benjamin will be the soloist on this occasion and he will play Frank's Symphony Variations.

"You can say anything too good about Mr. Barbiroll," said Mr. Benjamin. "He is a truly great conductor and has had tremendous experience in England before going to New York, as a musician, a cellist and as a conductor in many places." Mr. Benjamin recalled his associations with Mr. Barbiroll in England. "I dedicated one of my compositions to him," he said. "I was one of a set of five spirituals which I arranged for him. He dedicated one of the set to me. He called it 'Barbiroll's Song'."

He also recalled that Mr. Barbiroll, the former Evelyn Rothwell, was one of Britain's outstanding composers. "When I was a child," he said, "I was one of the first to be introduced to his music. He was the first solo player in the orchestra," said Mr. Benjamin.

RENEW FRIENDSHIP

Mr. Benjamin said that music was at such a high peak in Vancouver that he will hold a summer school there for piano, violin, voice, chamber music and other branches. He expressed his hope as being pleased to be back among his many friends in Edmonton. He is anticipating an enjoyable visit.
